West Sacramento Urban Farm program to add new Barn location to its crop

By Daniel Wilson
dwilson@dwilsononline.com

West Sacramento's Urban Farm program is preparing to grow with a new location on the property of the Barn, which is planned to begin the process of sprouting produce by the end of April, according to the program's manager Sara Bernal.

The new farm, which will be just over a quarter of an acre, is the city's fifth and joins the farms at 5th and C, Lake Washington, Cummins Way, and the Fiery Ginger Farm, which is located behind Yolo High School at 919 West Acre Road.

The Urban Farm program is a collaborative effort headed by the Winters-based non-profit Center for Land-Based Learning. Its main partners include Raley's, Nugget Markets, Community Business Bank, Bayer Crop Science and the city of West Sacramento's Chamber of Commerce.

"[The new site] is going to be really, really amazing because it's not only a partnership with Fulcrum Reality, [who owns the land], Raley's is also a huge sponsor on that site," said Bernal, who started the program in 2014. "We're going to be growing food at that farm that will be sold directly to Raley's supermarkets here in West Sac. Drake's Brewery is going to be taking over space at the Barn, so we'll be growing food for that restaurant."

The farm will additionally support a farm stand and food produced at the new site will be sold at the West Sacramento Farmers Market, which will be moving to the Barn when it returns this summer.

"The produce that will come out of there is definitely going to make its way through a lot of different avenues and it's also a way for us to test out new markets for the farmers," said Bernal, who will be farming the new site until farmers are assigned to it. "It'll be growing anywhere between 30 and 40 different vegetables and melons."

Mary Kimball, executive director for the Center for Land-Based Learning, said the new farm site has been in discussion for several years and she's happy to see it finally coming to fruition.

"The opportunity is so great there because it's so open and so many people are going to see it because it's right next to the Barn," Kimball said. "There's just so much excitement around the riverfront. [The Barn] will be the first of its kind in the Sacramento region that has a farm attached to it and a farm stand and a way for people to really connect to the agriculture of the region."

The Urban Farm program is part of the California Farm Academy incubator program, which trains farmers in both farming and business. Bernal said a lot of the country's farmers are retiring and that a new workforce being trained will important to the country's agricultural future.

She added that the academy and the Urban Farm program are a way for people who want to become farmers but have little-to-no knowledge of farming to get into the business.

"We break those barriers by working with all these different types of people who actually have access to land and take the time to get contracts to have five-year-at-a-time renewable leases," Bernal said. "That by itself, I think, is one of the larger advantages of having an incubator program. Most of these land owners wouldn't want to lease land to Joe Schmoe, but they'll lease it to a reputable non-profit that's operating a program."

Bernal said a big part of her job, aside from establishing locations

West Sac's Children and Technology

By Michele Townsend

As part of the restructuring and improvements of the Washington Unified School District, updated technology in every classroom is just one of the many changes. This doesn't only mean that the classrooms have new computers. It also includes the vast number of applications this technology can be used for, and on March 23, 2017 the first annual "STU-CON" was held.

Catered by RCHS's Culinary School, this even showcased how staff and students have stepped up and taken their education to places our kids have never been able to go to before. Held in the Galleria of City Hall, students in grades 1 to 11 (all TK-12 classrooms were eligible) showed off how effective the integration of technology into classrooms has effected their daily education. Through student-led presentations and demonstrations, the students showed their families and community members the many different ways that technology is being used, and some of the applications in which to use them. This allowed the community to see first hand the type of progress that is leading WUSD into being a truly extraordinary district.

With the use of Chromebooks, laptops, tablets and robotics there were ongoing student demonstrations of how technology can be an asset to any subject. People wandered around the room and enjoyed examples of how the students have written stories, created movies, built robots, made music, and much more. They explained, and taught the guests how those skills were applied to their lessons. It was amazing to see a 6th grader teaching Algebra and Geometry to adults. It was also quite impressive seeing

Yolo County DA Celebrated 11 Years of Honoring Crime Victims

District Attorney Jeff Reisig and the Yolo County District Attorney Victim Services Program hosted the Eleventh Annual Crime Victims' Tribute on April 3. Yolo County crime victims, community members, victim advocates, prosecutors, law enforcement, and service professionals again joined together with the Yolo County District Attorney's Office to recognize victims' rights and the devastating impact of crime on victims, schools, neighborhoods, and our nation as a whole.

The keynote address was given by sexual assault survivor and community advocate Yee Xiong. Reisig and Yolo County Victim Services honored five individuals and a family who have survived through tragic and heart-breaking events. The honorees include: A family who had their home burglarized by multiple offenders while they were asleep upstairs. The crime left them feeling as though they may never be able to regain their sense of security or wellbeing but they found incredible strength to carry on and testify during the jury trial. A survivor of domestic violence who was attacked by her boyfriend of 12 years in front of their young son. The victim sustained an eight inch knife cut. Her perseverance through both language barriers and a lack of transportation are a testament to her character and resilience. Three bicyclists who were intentionally run down by an unstable and crazed driver in Clarksburg. All three were injured but one young bicyclist suffered extreme injuries that nearly caused him to lose his life. With their families support and their determination, all three testified to help prosecute the offender. A domestic violence survivor who was brutally assaulted and suffered a broken back, a broken arm, and a severe bite mark. She was able to heal from her injuries and overcome many personal challenges in order to find the courage to testify and face her attacker at trial. The "Hero of the Year" award was presented to Dawn Yackzan, the Executive Director of Sexual Assault Awareness Campaign. Her campaign, which recognizes the gaps in sexual assault education for high school students, has united multiple organizations throughout the community and has become an incredible resource for parents, teachers, and students. Also, the Winters Theatre Company is presenting a special benefit performance of SEVEN in honor of Crime Victims' Rights Week at the Woodland Opera House on Saturday, April 8 at 7:30 p.m. SEVEN tells the true stories of seven courageous women around the world who stood up and fought for equality and justice for women. These women come from Nigeria, Russia, Guatemala, Northern Ireland, Afghanistan, Pakistan, and Cambodia. Issues such as human trafficking, domestic violence, labor laws, medical access, and the right to be educated are all addressed in this compelling theatre documentary. The event is sponsored by the Yolo County District Attorney's Office, the Winters Theatre Company, WEAVE, Empower Yolo, and My Sister's House. Tickets are $20.00 and may be purchased through the Woodland Opera House box office at www.woodlandopera-house.org or by calling 530-666-9617.

that students have learned how to write computer code well enough that they created cartoon movies. Eleventh grader Kainoni Williams described how reading the novel "The Great Gatsby" wasn't just a book they were assigned to read, instead there was a fun twist added to it. "This was better than just a regular old book report" she said "At the end of each chapter, we had to find a song that best described the meaning of the chapter or something about the chapter that was significant to us. It could be any song from any time period, and we could pick that song for whatever reason we wanted, as long as we could explain how they were related. It didn't matter if it was a statement in the song that matched the book, or a song that described something, or whatever. Then we put it all together together with graphics." It was interesting and engaging, and if this 17-year-old's work is the standard quality that our children will be producing, then the technological education that our kids are getting might just put them a step or two above the rest! Two years ago WUSD brought in the Innovated Educators Program, where additional technology training was given. Teachers had to sign up, and they had to be in teams of two; 130 signed up!

Reminder: Plant Sale and Gardening Workshop at Woodland Community College

Gardeners get your tools ready. It's time to start planning and planting your spring garden! Mid - April is the recommended time of year to get tomatoes and many other summer vegetables and annual flowers in the ground. It's also a good time to add some new attractive perennial plants to your landscape and to pick up some gardening tips from Master Gardeners at their free workshops and information table.

On Saturday April 8th from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. the UC Master Gardeners -Yolo County, the Woodland Community College Agriculture Department, and the Woodland High School gardening program will be selling 35 varieties of heirloom and hybrid tomatoes, other summer vegetables and flowers, house plants, perennial landscape plants, succulents and herbs. All proceeds from the plant sales help support these important gardening programs.

A presentation on Spring Floral Arrangements will start at 9:15 followed by a Pollinator Garden workshop at 10:30.

While visiting the Greenhouse and Gardens area enjoy some of the surrounding ornamental plantings, including a large rose garden, the drought tolerant bee friendly Four Square Garden, and a beautiful recently installed succulent garden. Also be sure to check out the significant progress on the new greenhouse being constructed on site.

Woodland Community College is located at 2300 East Gibson Road, Woodland. Plant sales and workshops will be held in the Greenhouse and Gardens area, and only cash and checks will be accepted for plant sales. For more information on this event that will happen rain or shine go to mgyolo.ucanr.edu or call 666-8737.

Hometown Boy has explosive start

By Michele Townsend

A former RCHS baseball star jump-started the 2017 Sac State collegiate baseball season by striking out the first five out of six batters in the Feb. 18 game against Washington State. Eighteen-year-old Austin Roberts has been playing baseball since he was 3 years old, and is described by Jamie King, RCHS Athletic Director, as being “a natural talent that was dedicated to his team, and committed to the game while at River City.” Sacramento State College first approached Austin when he was a high school sophomore, after seeing him pitch at El Dorado Hills. They continued to watch him, and by the next year (when he was just a junior), they offered Austin a full baseball scholarship to Sac State once he completed high school. It wasn't just any scholarship though! Austin was drafted as a Division 1 athlete.

King said “River City's athletic program has grown 5-6 times in size over the last few years, and our quality has grown with it...quality in programs, quality in dedication, and quality in athletes! However, a high school student being recruited straight into a Division 1 program is extremely rare!” He estimated that less than 2 percent of high school athletes go directly into Division 1. King proudly said that over 70 percent of RCHS's athletes have a 3.0 GPA or higher. A 2.0 GPA is required in order to participate in school sports. He also said that “Austin is a great representative of the high quality athletes and people that River City is producing.”

Austin is attending school full time, and is majoring in Kinesiology so that he can continue onto sports medicine.

Austin is a very positive and personable young man who is proud of his home town of West Sacramento. He is striving to represent the Sacramento area, as well as West Sacramento, and hopes to make them proud. Austin stated “It was difficult getting here, but what I've enjoyed the most is my team. You know, my teammates and how welcoming they are. They made the transition so easy, and we all work together so well. It's great how everybody respects is everyone on the team is aspiring to continue their baseball journey. Nobody criticizes... they critique. And we are all open to the help from each other! We all just click, and play together like we've played together for years, instead of it being our first year, They're just really great guys.”

Austin showed what a great guy he is when he ran over to his little brother, after the first game, and handed him the game ball that was signed by the entire Sac State baseball team. Sac State won 2 out of the 3 games that they played against Washington State, and is getting ready to travel to play the next series of games against North Kentucky.

Raiders Softball Off To a Hot Start

By Raider Reporters

The River City varsity softball team won their first Tri County Conference league game in dominant fashion against River Valley on wednesday, with a 10-0 shutout. The win brought the team to a 7-1-1 record but was also notable for the effort on defense. Senior pitcher Amaryssa Medina pitched a perfect game from the mound, completely shutting down the Falcons with her teammates making timely plays behind her. This perfect league opener and strong start to the season has propelled the Raiders to a #3 ranking in area softball by the Sacramento Bee. As good as the defense played, the team’s hitting might be even better. Against River Valley, sophomore catcher Reyna Cota hit 2 HR’s, bringing her season total to 12 HR’s in the first 9 games. “Our team’s greatest strength is definitely when we are up to bat. We have a lot of speed on the bases and a lot of home run hitters on our team,” said senior shortstop Elizabeth Caffero, who hit a HR to right field herself in the 2nd inning. Head coach Kim Ceo has been impressed with the player’s “camraderie, work ethic, and coming to practice with a purpose.” The Raiders will be tested in the TCC early, with 6 of their next seven games on the road. Their next home game will come on April 7 against Pioneer.

Friends and Families of suicide loss support group: The effect of a suicide on friends and family can be overwhelming. Survivors of suicide loss often state that no other loss has been as painful or confusing. In a group with others who have shared a similar loss, support comes from exploring, sharing, and clarifying feelings. Individuals are encouraged to consider attending no matter how long ago the suicide occurred. The group meets monthly at Yolo Hospice. There is no fee for this group, funded by the Ladd Clark Memorial Fund and Suicide Prevention of Yolo County. 6 to 7:30 p.m. at Yolo Hospice, 1909 Galileo Court, Davis, 95618.

Yolo County Library’s New Books by Mail Service: The Yolo County Library is introducing Books by Mail, a new free service that delivers library materials to Yolo County residents through the mail. This program is designed for residents who have a disability, illness or lack of regular transportation that prevents them from visiting a Yolo County Library branch. After completing an application and speaking with library staff, residents can request specific materials be mailed to them directly, and may even request library staff to select materials for them based on personal interest. Residents can be sent items such as audiobooks, regular and large print fiction and non-fiction books, international language materials, music CDs, magazines and DVDs in the library’s collection. Items will be loaned for four weeks and may be renewed by contacting Books by Mail staff. There is no cost to sign up for this program and no cost to return items, as residents will receive library materials in a reusable canvas book mailer with postage pre-paid by the library. Fees will only be charged to a resident to replace damaged or lost items. To learn more about this free service, contact Books by Mail staff at: 530-757-5583 or BooksbyMail@yolocounty.org; www.yolocountylibrary.org; www.facebook.com/yolocountylibrary.org.

Urban Farm:

for the farms, is fundraising. She said each farm costs approximately $40,000 to establish. A lot of that funding comes from the partners of the program.

Fiery Ginger, for instance, was fully funded by Raley’s and a portion of its crops go to the grocery chain’s Food for Families program, which helps provide food for hungry families, according to the site’s farmers Hope Sippola and Shayne Zurilgen.

Zurilgen is a former middle school teacher and Sippola formerly ran a farm at a middle school in Davis. Both got into full-time farming later in life, which Bernal said is fairly common with the Urban Farm program. Zurilgen and Sippola met through the farm academy.

The Fiery Ginger farm, named after Hope because, as she puts it, she’s a ginger, took root at the Yolo High School location about a year ago, and is a prime example of some of the benefits the farms bring to the community.

One of the biggest benefits of the Fiery Ginger farm in particular is the work its farmers do with local youth.

“We’re a for-profit farm, but a lot of our mission is working with the schools,” Sippola said. “We work with schools here in West Sac and provide some educational stuff and opportunities for these Yolo High kids to get some community service hours, field trips and other stuff.”

Sippola added that she and her business partner host students of all age groups at the farm and that while on the farm, the students participate in various activities from helping plant to learning about raising chickens.

The farmers said they also work four days a week with a transition to adult living program that helps 18-22-year-old students living with intellectual disabilities become more independent in adulthood.

“We are hoping that we can develop a business model that’s sustainable financially, but also can provide all these other types of services to the community and engender respect and support from the community as a result,” Zurilgen said.

Zurilgen praised the farm-to-fork movement that has become such a big deal over the last decade, but said although it’s generated a lot of interest, there’s still a lot of work to be done for people to recognize the importance of healthy eating and that quality food costs more.

“That said, all this kind of promotion of that concept, farm-to-fork, has opened doors for us to work with schools,” Zurilgen said. “I mean I worked at a school for 15 years, the lunch system was terrible. People are starting to see that it’s important how you raise food and investing in your health. I think those concepts are becoming commonplace now.”
